

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A PC includes a DMS document editing section for creating document data, a member for making a reference to a material such as a reference document, and further includes a log recording/reproducing section which creates log data including history data of a member executed in creation processes of document data and reproduces an operation of each member executed in the creation of the document data according to the log data when displaying the document data. As a result, a reader can obtain detailed creation processes of the document data, which enables him to fully understand the creation processes of the data file such as document data, etc.